I've heard that based on how wide the universe is, it's likely that aliens exist but that it'd be hard to run into them. If they are out there, I think it'd be nice to meet them.

A first-year high school student. Q's childhood friend. Worries about Q being involved in big incidents.

Googugu Smartphone

A Super Smartphone (or superphone) that is capable of searching for all the information on Earth and interacting with any communication device anonymously. The personality of its AI differs from device to device.

Tadayoshi Imura

A third-year student in Tokyo University's Department of Medicine. A superphone owner and Zenichiro's lackey. Regards Q as his enemy since Zenichiro pays such close attention to him.

Norenashi Moura

A third-year high school student. A superphone owner and Zenichiro's lackey, Moura was killed by Zenichiro after he handed over intel about the superphones to the police.

Shu Sagurada

Q's younger brother. Cheery and bright, he was the polar opposite of Q. Hasn't been seen since he went missing seven years ago.

Kyu Sagurada (Q)

A first-year high school student. Nickname: Q. Ever since he gained the superphone, he has been making every effort to learn the truth behind his younger brother's disappearance. His superphone's name is "Kimi," the Japanese word for "you."

story

A boy with prodigal intelligence, Kyu "Q" Sagurada, has lived his life in apathy since his younger brother disappeared. One day, Q finds an unfamiliar device in his schoolbag—a so-called "Googugu Smartphone" that claims to be capable of searching information across the entire world. At first, Q is skeptical, but as he solves cases with the superphone, he starts to believe in its powers. Despite his attempts, he can't find any information about his brother's disappearance. In order to learn the truth, Q must accrue enough points to unlock that information!

After saving Yuika from the tense high-rise incident, Q assumes that the culprit is a superphone owner responsible for his brother's disappearance. He assumes the name "Pseudonym" and attempts to recruit the ace detective of the police department's cybercrime squad, Nagi Seomizu. But he's interrupted by Zenichiro, who also aims to win her over! To gain Seomizu's trust, Q befriends Norenashi Moura, a superphone owner and Zenichiro's lackey. Q successfully hands him over to Seomizu. When the existence of superphones is exposed to the government, Moura is placed under police custody. However, Moura is ultimately assassinated to erase any evidence linking Zenichiro to his crimes. The next morning, Q receives the terrible news. Before he can figure out his next move, two new superphone users arrive at his front door!

HUH? SENARY?

WHAT'S THAT?

...THE BREAK IN THE SENARY NOTATON RULE.

...BUT THEY CONVERTED IT INTO A DECIMAL, OR BASE-10, REPRESEN-TATION FOR US.

BASICALLY, WE CAN ASSUME THAT THE MASTER ORIGINALLY DESIGNED THE SUPERPHONES WITH A SENARY BASE IN MIND...

By the way ...

1, 2, 3, ...8, 9, 10
→ The digit increasing at the 10th number is a decimal

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10
→ The digit increasing at the 6th number is a senary

In the digital world, a binary, or base-2, is normally used

	DECIMAL		SENARY
Max Points: 1296 P		→	10000
Mass Messaging Max Cap: 648		→	30000
Number of Owners: 12		→	20
Stage Advancement: 12 P, 24 P		→	20, 40

THE SUPERPHONE'S WEIRD FIGURES ROUND OFF INTO NICE EVEN NUMBERS WHEN YOU CONVERT THEM INTO SENARY— OR BASE-6.

THAT MEANS IT BREAKS THE SENARY NOTATION RULE.

IN BASE-6, 100 IS 244... IT'S NOT A CLEAN NUMBER.

DESPITE ALL OF THAT, THE POINTS GAINED FOR REVOKING A SUPERPHONE WAS 100.

Revoked an owner's Superphone (100 P)

I DON'T GET IT...

IT'S A NUMERAL SYSTEM. WE USUALLY USE 10 AS A BASE TO—

UH, SURE, WHAT-EVER. JUST GO ON.

...NOT SURE ABOUT THAT RIGHT NOW.

I'M...

WHY WOULD THIS "MASTER" MAKE THOSE DEVIATIONS?

OKAY, BUT WHY?

AAH, SO WHAT YOU MEAN IS...

...THINGS DON'T LINE UP.

WHY WOULD THEY USE A SENARY BASE?

IF THE SUPERPHONE MASTER IS GOD, THEN THEY'RE DOING THIS FOR SPORT...!

THEY'RE A CRUEL AND FICKLE GOD.

WHAT'S THIS ALL ABOUT? MIGHT GO VIRAL, LOL.

Wow, they're soakin' wet!
